Local Companies Partner to Produce Bear Hunting Video

Executive producer and local outdoorsman Eric Spokely, who recently started Pure Hunting Productions, has teamed with McKenna Video Services, of Puyallup, WA to document bear hunting in Southeast Alaska. Producing a video of this nature is a first for these companies, who bring different talents into the completed production.

Spokely, who also operates Northwest Fishing Adventures, led an expedition into the wild of Prince Whales Island this last May, joining 7 hunters from Washington State. Their main objective was to film a hunt of the black bear, using gear supplied by a number of various sponsors.

“Others will have the chance to see what it’s like ‘in the wild’ hunting,” says Spokely. “We’ll be in the wild hunting some of North America’s most majestic game animals. We’re in pursuit of everything from big Alaskan bears to the bugling bull elk of the Rockies.”

Spokely has contracted McKenna Video Services to complete all of the post production needed, including the edit and assembly of raw footage and DVD authoring. “Editing this video and working with Eric is almost like being there with them,” says Chris McKenna of McKenna Video Services. “This production should really give one a sense of what it’s like to hunt wild game.”

McKenna also states, “it’s rare that two exceptional companies from the same community can band together to produce such worthwhile entertainment.”
