McKenna Video Services Receives

Home Video Studio Owner of the Month – November 2006

(Puyallup, WA) Call it the luck of the Irish, hard work or a little of both as credit to the early success of McKenna Video Services of Puyallup, Washington. This barely year-old Home Video Studio TAKEONE Network member is quickly making a name for itself in the local video production market located just outside of the city of Tacoma.

Chris and Lynette McKenna are working hard to attract both corporate and individual customers alike to their studio. Whether it's trade show work for a company or a memorial video for a family to help celebrate the life of a loved one, the McKenna's are enjoying their new video business venture together.

“While video production is a lot fun, we don't neglect the marketing side of the business,” says Chris. “ We take very opportunity to talk with people, whether it's at a chamber function, networking group or even at church.”

Chris, a native of Dublin, Ireland and former financial analyst for Boeing, works the business fulltime, while Lynette is part time help. Despite their newness to the industry, they have already won several Hanley Awards, including Best Use of Titles, Dr. Strangelove and a Quick Start recognition. Home Video Studio congratulates them and wishes them continued achievements.
